VOLUME XXXVI — UKIAH CITY, MENDOCINO COUNTY, CAL., FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 15, 1905 — NUMBER 51

SUPERVISORS PROCEEDINGS

Regular Monthly Meeting of the County Board.

Ordinance No. 147, granting a franchise to the Eel River Power and Irrigation Company to maintain a wire line for the transmission of electricity along the public road from Potter valley to Ukiah was granted.

Report of committee on Eel river bridge accepted and filed.

Matter of repairing the bridge was taken up and the various contractors given time to submit plans and specifications for the consideration of the board.

The board decided to receive bids upon all plans and specifications presented, the board reserving the right to reject any or all plans presented. Bids were opened as follows:

Healey, Tibbetts & Co., 1st plan $3900; 2nd plan $6900.

Pacific Coast Construction Co., 1st plan $4197; 2nd plan $7397; Healey, Tibbetts plan $5257.

S. F. Bridge Co. on plans of Pacific Coast Construction Co.'s plan—No. 1 $4850; No. 2 $7950; on Healey, Tibbetts plans $5800.

A. J. Fairbanks moved that the repairing of said bridge be made a case of emergency. Motion was seconded, but lost by the following vote:

Ayes—Gibson, Fairbanks, Barnard.

Noes—Lane and Lawson.

Miss Mabelle R. Hirsch was instructed to prepare the county statistics as required by the State board, at a cost of $50, the stationery and stamps not to exceed $25.

The board adjourned till Monday, Sept. 18th, when the county tax rate will be fixed.

THE RESOURCES OF WENDLING

F. V. Dunham, representing the Wendling Townsite Company, was a pleasant caller at this office last Saturday. Mr. Dunham is an experienced real estate man and is a keen judge of commercial and industrial conditions, and his prediction is that Mendocino coast towns have good things in store for them.

Mr. Dunham expressed himself in a very optimistic manner as to the future of the bustling young city of Wendling. The very logic of its situation assures a town of considerable importance at Wendling. Besides having the advantage of being situated at the lower end of the beautiful and productive Anderson valley, famed for its rich products of grain and fruit, and the salubriousness of its unsurpassed climate, and with a magnificent mineral spring to draw health seekers surrounded with a body of virgin redwood forests, a rich resource almost inexaustible in its vastness, the town is possessed of decided advantages.

The town is building up very rapidly. A large hotel is one of the projected enterprises for the near future and will afford ample accommodations for the large number of people who desire to visit the place.

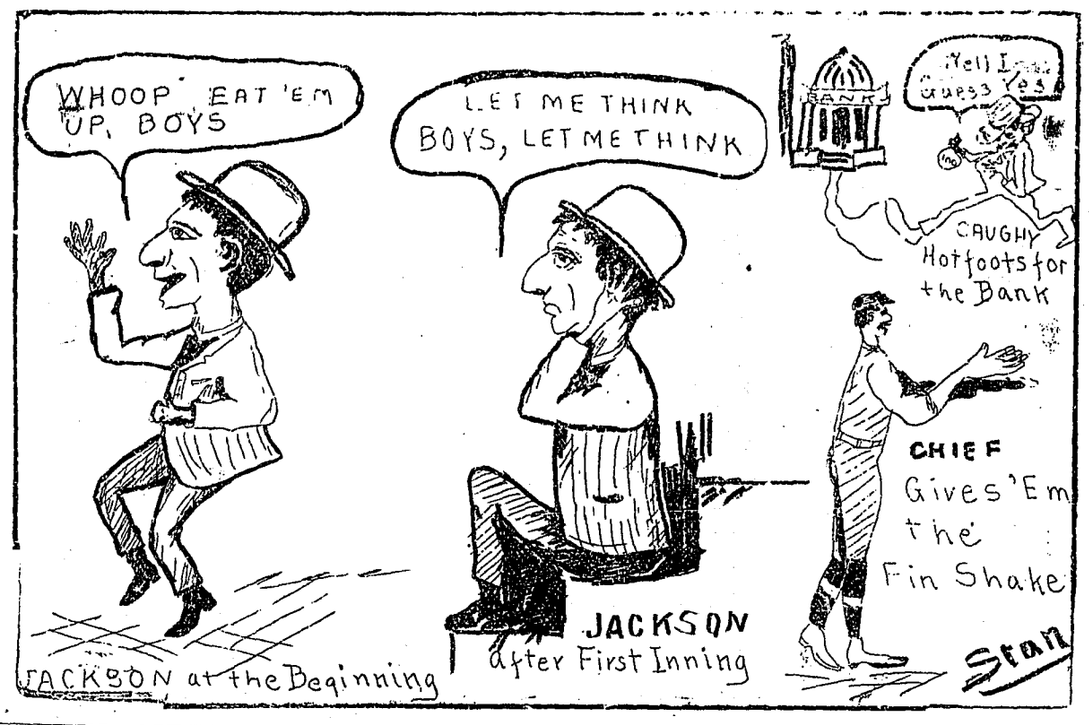
Justice J. F. Murray was appointed agent for the Wendling Townsite Company to include Caspar and Mendocino.—The Beacon.

Small Girl Has Tumor

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wheeler of Laytonville, Mendocino county, passed thru this city on the morning train. They took their daughter, Nellie Wheeler, 11 years of age, to San Francisco, where she will undergo an operation for the removal of a tumor. A previous operation had failed to remove the growth entirely, and the second operation is necessary to save the child's life.—Santa Rosa Republican.

FORT BRAGG BALL TOSSERS LOSE TO COUNTY SEAT TEAM

Some Impressions of the Game As the Artist of the Dispatch-Democrat Saw It---Chief Buffaloes the Fog-Eaters.



Manager F. C. Jackson and his Fort Bragg ball tossers, Umpire Aylward, several rooters and a few lady admirers of the contingent came over to the county seat last Saturday afternoon to be on hand Sunday when the fog eaters were to try their luck with the lads of the hop belt. The Fort Bragg visitors were certainly lovers of the national game. They were enthusiastic, too, and expected to win the game, as they had easily won the coast pennant. They were a jolly lot of fellows, gentlemen at all times, and anxious to get at Ukiah. Manager Jackson made many friends among the lovers of the game in Ukiah, and while his team lost, he proved himself a good loser and urged the Ukiahites to come to Fort Bragg and play a return game.

The visitors, including the players, numbered 17 in all. They were Manager F. C. Jackson, Umpire John Aylward, Harry Osborne, Bert Johnson, Bart Betz, Victor Betz, Mascot Tommy Golden, Mrs. Beesler and Miss Sadie Betz and the nine players whose names appear in the score below.

The game was called and everybody became anxious. The Fort Braggers were at the bat and Manager Jackson was quite talkative. "Chief" and his supporters, however, soon retired the side with a big goose egg for the fog eaters. Ukiah then came to bat and succeeded in getting a few men on bases. At this stage of the game the fog eaters forgot themselves and thot it was a football game and booted the ball all over the grounds, made a few wild throws, during which time three Ukiahites had crossed the home plate. Ukiah again shut the visitors out and the fog eaters again booted the ball and threw wild allowing four more tallies to be chalked up against them. Fort Bragg then settled down and played good ball. Pitcher Haley proved himself a good twirler and refused to be rattled by the rooters. When the rooters found out why, the joke was on them. A number of times Fort Bragg had one, two and three men on bases, but luck was against them and they failed to score excepting in the fifth inning, when Ukiah got mixed up and thot it was a football game and emulated the example set by the visitors, booting the ball around the diamond, allowing Charley Hayter to score. After that it was all goose eggs for the visitors, and the game ended in Ukiah's favor by a score of 9 to 1.

With the exception of the first two innings both sides played good ball. There was only one earned run and that was made by Ukiah. Fort Bragg only got two hits and Ukiah seven. The teams were pretty evenly matched and the return game will be awaited with much interest. Had there been no errors the score would have been only 1 to 0 in favor of Ukiah. Jonnny Aylward's decisions as umpire were satisfactory in every respect. The details of the game are told below:

THE EEL RIVER BRIDGE MATTER

The condition of the Eel river bridge has been occupying the attention of the board of supervisors for the past week. As stated last week, the bridge was repaired last year by the Healey, Tibbetts Co. for $12,000 and is now in a worse condition than it was before.

Supervisors Lane, Gibson, Fairbanks and experts Orr and McKenzie visited the bridge last Saturday. The experts reported as follows:

"We have inspected the entire structure and find the bridge in immediate danger of collapsing from compression of the top chords. We find the chords sprung out of line at least ten inches between bearings, which has shortened the space between bearings and slackened the bracing, and in our judgment the bridge is unsafe even for light travel. In regard to repairing same, would recommend new timbers for the chords and batter posts. Batter posts 10x18 and chords 14x16, Mendocino red fir, and would recommend reinforcing the entire lateral system of bracing by putting the bracing to 20-foot panels in connection with the 40-foot panel that is on the bridge at the present time."

Several contractors appeared before the board, but their bids for repairing the bridge seemed excessively high, and as the board were not sure that the bridge would still be in condition after the expenditure of so much money, all bids were rejected.

The matter has been postponed until Monday, Sept. 18th. The board is of the opinion that Healey, Tibbetts & Co. should make the bridge good, but as that firm refuses to make its work good, it's highly probable that the county will go into the bridge business itself and do the repairing by the day's work. Experts McKenzie and Orr will doubtless be put to work on the bridge and the county will furnish the materials.

FROM THE GOLD FIELDS OF NEVADA

Tonopah, Nev., Sept. 5, 1905.—Having just arrived in this great gold country and about the first man I met being an old Ukiah man, I thot I would drop you a few lines to let you know about him as well as others that I met in my travels. When I passed thru Verdi, Nev., I met Geo. Hurd, who was a barber with Sam Blodes and afterwards with Jake Newcomer in the saloon business. He came as far as Reno, and, like all the has-beens of Ukiah, longs to be back again.

When I arrived at Tonopah Sunday eve, being about ready for the hay pile, I did not see any one, but bright and early Monday morning I ran into Jim Haywards, who used to be a conductor on the C. N. W. R. R. and later a prominent saloon keeper in Ukiah, and I must say that Jim's prominence has not left him for he is just as big in Tonopah, Nev., as ever he was in Ukiah and I don't know but what he has grown some here, for, as you know, next to his feelings for the fair sex is his love for a good dog, and he certainly has a good one here—it is a water spaniel and is known as Fargo, the singing dog, the only singing dog west of the Rockies, but Jim has a hard time keeping track of his dog for his sidekicker Earl Loring, manager of the Enterprise Mercantile Co., has a mortgage on the dog and many a time Jim Haywards is accused of being where he is not because some one passing by the place hears the dog singing, and, of course, being Haywards' dog, he must be there also, but as the dog spends most of his time with Loring, Jim can't keep track of him. Haywards is running the Palace Hotel and bar here and is doing a big business. Jim's wife is now on a visit to some of her relatives and friends down in San Diego and Mr. Earl Loring not only has the dog to look after, but he is Jim's guardian also. As Mrs. Haywards is very fond of the singing dog Fargo she wants Loring to take good care of him and he is anxious to make a reputation for himself while Jim is batching it.

ADMIRAL TOGO'S FLAGSHIP BLOWN UP

The battleship Mikasa, Togo's flagship, has been destroyed by fire and the explosion of her magazine, causing the loss of 599 lives, including men of other ships who went to the rescue. The fire started from an unknown cause at midnight on Sunday, September 10. Before the officers could be rescued the fire reached the aft magazine, blowing a hole in the port side of the vessel below the water line and causing the ship to sink. Admiral Togo was not on board the Mikasa when the disaster to the battleship occurred. The disaster to the vessel has caused a profound sensation and has cast a gloom everywhere. The ship was at anchor in Sasebo harbor when the fire started at the base of the mainmast at midnight. It spread with great rapidity, exploding the after magazine an hour after the fire had been discovered. The Mikasa sank in shallow water, and it is believed she can be repaired.

YOUNG RUDD IS SHOT FOR A DEER

Last week Ralph Byrnes, formerly a pupil in the local high school, and one of the Rudd boys, of Hot springs, were out hunting on Big river near Johnston's camp. The boys separated and pretty soon young Byrnes saw the brush move and thot he saw a deer and fired away and hit young Rudd. Fortunately the bullet struck Rudd in the fleshy part of the hip and did no serious damage. Rudd was taken to Mendocino where the wound was dressed and he is getting along nicely.

Grant Cook, formerly a resident of this city and a brother of Dan Cook, died in Sacramento Wednesday. He was a traveling salesman for a San Francisco firm. He formerly conducted a furniture business in this city.

DR. H. THOMSON PASSES AWAY

Pioneer Physician of Boonville Crosses the Great Divide.

The friends of Dr. H. Thomson, of Boonville, were greatly shocked last Saturday evening when the news of his death spread thruout the neighborhood. The Doctor was only sick a day when death called him away.

Dr. Herbert Thomson was born at St. Stephens, New Brunswick, July 29, 1853, and died in Boonville Sept. 9, 1905, being a little over 52 years of age at the time of his death. He was the son of J. S. Thomson, an Episcopal clergyman of St. Stephens, New Brunswick, and the nephew of the late Samuel R. Thomson, Queen's Counsel for the Provinces during the great fishery question between the United States and Canada, whose brilliant speeches won for England her advantages in the settlement of it.

Dr. Thomson was a graduate of Bowdoin Medical College of Maine and a post graduate of Bellevue of New York. He began his medical career at the age of 21 in Le Mar, Iowa. After some years he decided to come West and located in Eureka, California. In 1885, he removed to Boonville, this county, where after twenty years of faithful service, his death occurred last Saturday afternoon. Among his many valuable reminders of a grateful people, Dr. Thomson prized highly an engraved testimonial and gold watch given him by Major Peckham of San Jose, for valued services rendered in his family.

In 1880, Dr. Thomson was married to Miss Alice Packer, of Eureka, who with six children mourn the loss of a devoted husband and a loving father—Bessie E., Herbert S., Skeffington E., Keith, Kenneth, and Vivienne. Two brothers survive him, Capt. Sedgefield Thomson, State chief wharfinger of San Francisco and George Lindsay of Eureka; also two sisters, Mrs. McMarran of Eugene, Oregon, and Miss Bessie Lindsay, of Berkeley.

Dr. Thomson was one of the best physicians in the county and had successfully practiced his profession in Anderson valley for over 20 years. The nights were never too dark or the roads too rough for him to go where duty called him to relieve distress. The people of Anderson valley will long miss Dr. Thomson. He was an earnest, honest and upright man, and a conscientious physician and was generally well liked from one end of the valley to the other.

The remains were brought to this city for interment. The funeral services were held in the Trinity Episcopal church on last Monday afternoon, Rev. F. W. Crook officiating. The interment was in Odd Fellows cemetery.

AN INSANE MAN BURNS DWELLING

Sheriff Moore and W. P. Benton, of Lake county, Monday brot over George Kaherer, who had been committed to the asylum on the charge of insanity. Kaherer lived near Highland springs and a few mornings ago he set fire to his father's dwelling, which burned down, ran the family off the place and took to the brush himself. He slept that night in the tules on the lake shore, and the following morning struck out across the country to the Geysers, where he was captured by Sheriff Moore. The last eight or ten miles across the mountains he had only one shoe on and his feet were in horrible condition. He had no evidences of an attack of insanity previous to this, but it was thought only temporary.

EASY DIVORCES.

In Ancient Rome the Marriage Tie Was Loosely Knotted.

Not only was the "bachelor evil" well recognized in ancient Rome in the days of the early Caesars in much the same way that it is today, but many other phases of the marriage question were not unlike the problems that are up for solution in this present year of grace. The matter of divorce was one. People had an idea even then that it was not good for the state, but no effective means to check it was ever discovered. "We are assured by Seneca," says the historian, Inge, "that there were women in Rome who counted their ages not by their years, but by the husbands they had had. Juvenal tells of one woman who married eight husbands in five years. Divorce was granted on the slightest pretext. Many separated merely from love of change, disdaining to give any reason, like Æmilius Paullus, who told his friends that 'he knew best where his shoes pinched him.'

"Rich wives were not much sought after by wise men. Their complete emancipation made them difficult to manage. Accordingly since both rich and poor wives were objectionable, the large majority of men never married at all. In most cases a Roman bridegroom knew practically nothing of his wife's character until after marriage. Marriage for the Roman woman meant a transition from rigid seclusion to almost unbounded liberty.

"She appeared, as a matter of course, at her husband's table, whether he had company or not. She could go where she liked, either to the temples of Isis and Serapis or to the circus and amphitheater. She had her own troops of slaves, over whom she ruled without interference."

Byron a Tragic Figure.

"The more I think of Byron," says John Davidson in the London Outlook, "the more clear it becomes to me that he is, first, second and third, a tragic figure. He was the child of a loveless marriage, that constant source of huge armies of discordant natures. His upbringing was tragic, his marriage was tragic, his loves were tragic, his death, which at first I thought only tragic force, is actual tragedy. Byron and Napoleon, contemporaries, were the analogues and compliments of each other. Byron is the passive tragedy of the imaginative temperament as poet, using expression. Napoleon is the active tragedy of the imaginative temperament as warrior and world compeller, employing deeds. Byron inevitably ends in an abortive attempt at action in Greece. Napoleon, as inevitably, in an abortive attempt at expression (the dictated memoir) in St. Helena."

An Elaborate Speech.

"If there is anybody under the canopy of heaven that I hold in utter execrescence," says Mrs. Partington, "it is a tale bearer and slanderer, going about like a vile boa constructor, circulating his camomile amongst the honest folks. I always know one by his phismahogany. It seems as if Belzabob had stamped him with his private signal, and everything he looks at appears to turn yaller." And having uttered this somewhat elaborate speech she was seized with a violent fit of coughing and called for some "demulcent drops."

The Uses of Evil.

"Say, ma wants two pounds of butter. She wants it just exactly like what you sent the day before yesterday, an' if it ain't that same kind she don't want any at all."

The small boy had bolted in, discharging himself abruptly of his errand, pausing now only for breath. But the grocer, taking down the order of a new customer, did not mind the interruption.

"You see, madam, how it goes," he said pleasantly. "My customers are particular, and it is my pleasure to get them exactly what they demand. Yes, sonny," blandly to the boy, "you shall be attended to at once."

"Ma says don't forget to send the same kind of butter," reiterated the boy. "Some of pop's relations has just come to visit, and ma says if they stay long it won't be her fault."

Democratic Opportunity

Mr. Bryan has announced thru the columns of his paper, The Commoner, that the principal cause of Democratic defeat this year was that the men who secured control of the party organization at St. Louis sounded a retreat when a charge should have been ordered all along the line. He insists that conditions demand radical action, and that the people want something definite upon which they can rely. The Commoner, he announces, will carry on a campaign of education, advocating tariff reform, the overthrow of private monopolies, labor legislation, municipal ownership of public utilities, public ownership of railroads and telegraph systems, an income tax, the election of federal judges by the people, the election of United States senators by popular vote, direct legislation, and the selection of postmasters by the people whom they are to serve.

It will be necessary to regain control of the party organization. To do this the friends of reform thruout the entire country must work together. A Democratic paper of national scope offers the best means for carrying on this work, and the Commoner occupies this field. The campaign of education and organization which Mr. Bryan announces will be carried on thru the Commoner regularly so as to keep in touch with the progress the reform forces are making, and to fortify himself with facts and arguments to convince his Republican neighbor that the Democratic party offers the surest relief from class legislation and trust domination.

The low rate which Mr. Bryan has quoted on his paper enables us to send out The Commoner and THE DISPATCH both one year for $3.25. Get your neighbors to join you in circulating Democratic literature, and the election returns in 1908 will not call for apologies or explanations. tf

Death of John McCloud

When, on August 16th, death entered the home of L. C. McCloud, of Talmage, and took therefrom his aged father, John McCloud, many were the friends whose hearts were saddened, and deep indeed was the grief of the wife and son, who are left to mourn the loss of one of Mendocino's most honorable fathers, husbands, and citizens. Mr. McCloud was born in Columbus, Ohio, March 9, 1820. Crossed the plains in 1850, settling in Napa. Six years later he visited the east and returned again, this time by water. He now settled in Potter valley, which place was his home for many years. In 1874 he married Miss Mattie Van Nader, and their many friends were grieved much when, in '93, they decided to leave the valley and make Talmage their home. Never were two people more respected, never was a home more hospitable than theirs and never was a couple blessed with a son more honorable, popular and dutiful than they. So indeed their departure from Potter was Potter's loss and Talmage's gain. However both places now unite in sympathizing with the grief-stricken family and many are the hearts that regret the passing away of another of California's good old pioneers. And now let us hope that the plains dear old Mac now enters upon are those of God. On them may his tired feet find no hard and dangerous pathways to tread, and over them may he be guided to the land of eternal peace and sunshine by the beckoning hand of "Our Father who art in Heaven."

A Story of Jean Bart, an Old Time French Naval Officer.

Jean Bart, a French naval commander of the last part of the seventeenth century, was at one time ordered to convey the Prince de Conti, a candidate for the throne of Poland, to Danzic, a voyage fraught with danger, as his vessel must pass through the waters where were cruising the hostile fleets of the English and Dutch. During the passage the little squadron was chased by the enemy, and Bart, as soon as they were reported, called his little son to him and gave him whispered instructions. The pursuit continued for eight hours, and at the end of that time the enemy was no longer in sight. Then Bart went down into the cabin, where the prince had been sitting in ignorance of the day's excitement.

"You've had a narrow escape, monseigneur," said he.

"What do you mean?" asked the prince.

"Why," answered Bart, "that we've been chased by three eight-gun ships and nine frigates. We've run them out of sight, and there's nothing to fear."

"But, M. Bart, if they had taken us?"

"Oh, monseigneur, that was quite impossible."

"Eh! What? Why impossible?"

"Because," answered Bart, "I had stationed my brave son, my Cornil, in the gunroom with a lighted match and strict orders to put it into the powder if we should be overpowered."

"What!" cried the prince. "You would never have done such a thing?"

"Certainly I would have done it," said Bart. "It shall never be said that I allowed you to be taken when the king ordered me to take care that you were not."

Perhaps the prince himself might have preferred prosaic surrender to the doubtful glory of being blown up.

He Only Wanted the Insides.

A certain colonel's gardener was going through the woods belonging to his employer when he saw a man gathering nuts. As the colonel had given him strict orders that no one was to pick the nuts, the gardener said to the man:

"You'll have to clear out of this. I've orders to keep all these nuts for the colonel."

"It's all right," replied the man. "That's what I'm getting 'em for."

The gardener, satisfied, then passed on.

Meeting the same man a week after, he said:

"Look here! You were not getting those nuts for the colonel at all."

"I tell you I was," was the emphatic reply. "Do you think I was getting 'em for the shells? Not me."—London Mail.

The Whale.

An English schoolboy gives his views regarding the whale: "The whale is not called a fish because it is so big, so it is called a creature. They eat cockels and worms and jellies. The whales swim in shols, and they have a tarpoon at the end of their tails, when he moves his tail, with one blow he will smash the side of the ship. It has a very big head and two fins, or flappers, on one side of its body. Fishmongers catches whales an sail them. Some people eat whales with salt and piper and bread, and some with potatoes. If you keep a whales head under water he will die for want of breath."

Survival of the Fitter.

A fitter who squeezed into a boiler at the railroad station at Crewe, England, apparently increased in size while inside, for he could not get out. The engine was obviously not of the kind known as triple expansion, and a problem of the most serious order faced the other employees. At first it was proposed to get up steam and drive him through the safety valve in the ordinary way. His previous good character, however, and the possession of a large family secured him a reprieve. The boiler was taken to pieces, the incident ending, according to a London journal, in the "survival of the fitter."

The Truth Breaks Out.

"Now, of course, doctor," said the man upon whose eye the operation had been performed, "I respect your skill highly and all that, but doesn't it seem, even to you, a little too much to charge $50 for doing a bit of work that occupied you about five minutes?"

"My good sir," said the great oculist, hastening to the defense of himself and his profession, "you don't realize that in acquiring the skill to perform such an operation in five minutes I have spoiled perhaps two bushels of eyes quite as valuable as yours!"—New York Times.

VEST POCKET WONDER.

Marvels of the Watch—Distance Traveled by Wheels Each Year.

How often is it that things we see and handle many times in a day are seldom thought of! How few of those who possess a watch have ever thought of what is expected of it and the work it has to do!

This little machine is expected to work day and night without stopping (as our pulse has to work from birth till death). We expect it to show us the right time in winter and summer and in whatever position it is placed.

Now, if we open an ordinary gentleman's Geneva horizontal watch we can see the balance about five-eighths of an inch in diameter, which gives a three-quarters' turn at every tick of the watch, so that the little pin seen in the balance travels at every tick of the watch about one and a half inches, and as a watch of that description has to make 18,000 vibrations in an hour the little pin has to make a journey of about ten miles every twenty-four hours.

Now, well made watches are generally expected to go for two years, so the little pin in the balance would have made the long journey of 7,300 (English) miles.

The balance in a lever watch makes generally one and a half turns at every tick, and therefore travels double the distance—viz, 14,600 miles. To be able to accomplish this all the materials must be of the best and hardest. The oil also must be of the best and so fine and fluid that one drop will suffice to oil 200 pivots, or bearings, and keep good in the watch for at least two years.

Equally astonishing are the means by which a watch is regulated. This is done by lengthening or shortening the fine spiral spring, generally known as the hairspring.

If a watch should be half a minute slow a day the hairspring is a fourteen thousandth part of a second too long. Should a watch be only a minute a week slow it would then be the ninety-eight thousandth part of a second too long.

All that is expected of the user of a watch is that it is regularly wound up and be not too carelessly treated. Everything else has to be left to the mechanism of the watch and to the clever skill of the watchmaker.—Pearson's Weekly.

His Lone Sample.

When James T. Brady, the celebrated lawyer of New York, first opened a lawyer's office he took a basement room which had previously been occupied by a cobbler. He was somewhat annoyed, says the writer of "Famous American Jurists," by the previous occupant's callers and irritated by the fact that he had but few of his own.

One day an Irishman entered.

"The cobbler's gone, I see," he said.

"I should think he had!" tartly responded Brady.

"And what do you sell?" asked Paddy, looking at a few law books.

"Blockheads," responded Brady.

"Begorra," said the Irishman, "ye must be doing a mighty fine business. Ye ain't got but one left."

Used the Hint.

A British officer in his expense list on government service put down, "Porter, 2d." The war office in a verbose and high falutin' letter pointed out that refreshments while in the execution of public duty were not chargeable to the nation. The officer replied that the item did not represent refreshments, but a fee to a carrier. The officer replied, "You should have put 'porterage.'" The officer treasured the hint. Next time he had occasion to take a hackney coach he put down in his accounts, "Cabbage, 2s."

Trivial Causes.

In most unhappy marriages the cause of evil has been trivial. As Steele says, the first maxim in a married man's condition is that husband and wife should be above trifles. When two persons have so good an opinion of each other as to come together for life they will not differ in matters of importance, because they think of each other with respect and are prepared for mutual assistance and relief. But for smaller matters they have made no preparations, and hence springs the mischief.

Force of Habit.

A laughable story is told of an old miser who, being at the point of death, resolved to give all his money to a nephew at whose hands he had experienced some little kindness. "Sam," said he, for that was his nephew's name—"Sam, I am about to leave the world and to leave you all my money. You will then have $50,000. Only think! Yes, I feel weaker and weaker. I think I shall die in two hours. Oh, yes, Sam, I'm going. Give me a pen, pen and ink, and you may take [illegible]"

At the Bar

The multi-millionaire entered thru the gates that stood before the bar of judgment.

"Have you any idea what your account is?" queried the angel with the book.

"O, yes," replied the multi-millionaire with a smug smile. "I founded a great school and endowed it with millions, and I—"

"And you filched water from the municipality for use in your big factory," interrupted the angel.

"I founded an orphan school and endowed it with millions, and—"

"With millions filched from widows and other orphans by means of watered stock, purchased laws and rebates," interrupted the angel.

"I established a charity bureau and doled out millions to the deserving poor who—"

"Who had been made poor by your unjust exactions," interrupted the angel.

"I equipped a regiment at my own expense when the nation's life was in danger, and—"

"And made 10,000 per cent on the investment by supplying the government with tainted meat, shoddy clothing and paper shoes under contract," interrupted the angel.

"I lifted the mortgages on many churches, and—"

"Plastered mortgages on hundreds of cottages," interrupted the angel.

"I gave large sums to scientific exploration, and—"

"And reduced defiance of law to an exact science," interrupted the angel.

"I led a Sunday school, and—"

"And led many a young man to ruin by your example," interrupted the angel.

"I provided many poor widows with coal when the winter blasts were blowing, and—"

"And compelled millions to suffer from those same winter blasts by arbitrarily advancing the price of the coal supply which you controlled," interrupted the angel.

"But I—"

"I guess that will do," interrupted the angel again, dipping his pen in the red ink bottle and rapidly setting down a total.—The Commoner.

A Plea to the Fish.

"Talk about mosquitoes," said an American, "why, when we were in latitude 50 degrees and longitude 75 degrees a host of mosquitoes settled on our rigging, and when they left us there wasn't a stitch of canvas left on the boat."

"Waal," said his friend, "that's strange, because when I was sailing in latitude 29 degrees and longitude 74 degrees a swarm of mosquitoes settled on our rigging, and every one of them had a pair of canvas breeches on. Same mosquitoes, no doubt!"—London Globe.

There is a delicious story of a very vain officer who was helping to garrison Edinburgh castle when the Boer war was in its early days.

"You are ordered off for active service immediately!" exclaimed a stripling, rushing into the officer's establishment.

The pompous man, alert with excitement, was on his feet in an instant.

"Good heavens!" he burst out. "Has Roberts been killed already?"

Queer Ways In Which New York's Big Stores Are Defrauded.

"It is an almost incredible thing," said a man from one of the big stores recently, "how often seemingly honest people give way to temptation and commit what are comparatively small breaches and yet certainly are transgressions against honesty.

"We have had three instances of it during the past week. One lady, a regular customer of ours, had charged to her account a brass kettle costing about $7. The delivery man made a mistake and took it to the wrong apartment, and the lady there, a neighbor and acquaintance of our customer, received the package and kept it. She does not deny it, but simply refuses to give the kettle up. She says the mistake was not hers, and she sees no reason why she should right it. Of course we had to right it with our customer.

"Another woman, also an old customer, had some expensive draperies sent to her house on Saturday. The Monday following our man went up to see about the hanging of them, and she told him she had decided not to take them. When the hangings were returned to us they showed unmistakable signs of having been used and even slightly injured. The papers described that woman as having given a big entertainment on that particular Sunday, and the deduction is easy to make.

"Still another woman ordered from our ready to wear suit department a handsome black coat, which happened to fit her without alteration. It was delivered one day and returned the next. When examined, it was found to have been worn, and worn hard, too, as there were splotches of mud on the bottom edges. We had reason to believe that woman had been obliged to attend a funeral and took that method of avoiding the purchase of a black garment.

"When such unscrupulous persons chance to be old customers we usually have no redress at all."—New York Press.

Absentmindedness.

The best instance I know is that of an amiable Irish judge, now no longer on the bench. Among other amusing tales told of him it is said that on the occasion of a "bar dinner" he went upstairs to dress, but did not reappear. The company sat patiently for some time till at length, just as their hunger was getting the better of their manners and an emissary was being dispatched to hunt up the missing judge, his lordship appeared and explained, with many apologies, that, imagining he was retiring for the night, he had undressed and got into bed. After an hour's snooze it suddenly struck him that he had not yet dined, on which he hurried down to his guests. —London Spectator.

Queen Victoria's Wit.

In a biography of Leech, the painter, who at one time acted as drawing master to Queen Victoria, Mr. W. P. Frith relates an amusing story, illustrating her majesty's wit.

One day in the course of a lesson the queen let her pencil fall to the ground. Both master and pupil stooped at the same moment to pick it up, when, to the horror of Leech, there was a collision, the master's head striking that of his royal pupil. Before he could stammer out an apology, however, the queen, smiling, said:

"Well, Mr. Leech, if we bring our heads together in this way I ought to improve rapidly."

Reciprocity.

As the desire to give advice to all persons and upon all occasions seems to be natural to most human beings, the following story told of a well known woman writer may not be without interest: While speaking at a working girls' club a writer of successful novels asked the members how much they earned and advised them to put aside a certain amount each week from their wages. A few nights later the novelist's doorbell rang, and one of the members of the club presented herself. She had come to ask what the income of her late adviser was and to suggest what percentage of the same ought to be put in the bank.

The Innocent Bottle.

By the side of a certain portion of a suburban railway stands a glue factory which sometimes gives out a particularly offensive smell. A lady who was obliged to travel on this line quite often always carried with her a bottle of lavender salts. One morning an old farmer took the seat beside her. As the train neared the factory the lady opened her bottle of salts. Soon the whole car was filled with the horrible odor of the glue. The old farmer put up with it as long as he could. Then he shouted, "Madam, would you mind puttin' the cork in that 'ere bottle?" —Chicago News.

SMOKING IN HOLLAND.

The Dutch Are the Greatest Users of Tobacco in Europe.

The Hollanders are perhaps of all the northern peoples those who smoke the most. The humidity of their climate makes it almost a necessity, and the very moderate cost of tobacco renders it accessible to all.

To show how deeply rooted is the habit it is enough to say that the boatmen of the trekschuit, the aquatic diligence of Holland, measure distance by smoke. From here, they say, to such and such a place it is not so many miles, but so many pipes.

When you enter a house after the first salutations your host offers you a cigar. When you take your leave he hands you another and often insists upon filling your cigar case.

In the streets you see persons lighting a fresh cigar with the burning stump of the last one without pausing in their walk and with the busy air of people who do not wish to lose a moment of time or a mouthful of smoke. Many go to sleep with pipe in mouth, relight it if they wake in the night and again in the morning before they step out of bed.

It really does appear that smoking is for the Dutchman a necessary vital function.

Many people think that so much smoke dulls the intelligence. Nevertheless if there be a people, as Esquiroz justly observes, whose intellect is of the clearest and highest precision it is the Dutch people.

"Smoke," said a Hollander, "is our second breath." Another defined the cigar as the sixth finger of the hand.—Pearson's Weekly.

"Just to See Them Kick."

It is one of the anomalies of western life that a pale, slender, high voiced, light haired and altogether effeminate individual named William Antrim, sometimes called Billy Bonny and usually known as "Billy the Kid," should be the worst desperado in the history of the frontier. Yet in considering the so called "bad men" of the west his name must stand forth as the superlative of badness. Some of the gun fighters of frontier days killed in self defense, and others killed when they were in liquor or inflamed with anger. But "Billy the Kid" was the only white man who slew out of pure wantonness. Three of his victims—Mexicans they were—he bowled over "just to see them kick," as he laughingly explained afterward.—Arthur Chapman in Outing.

His Majesty.

Henry VIII. and the sovereigns before his reign were usually addressed as "My liege" and "Your grace." The latter epithet was originally conferred upon Henry IV., "Excellent grace" was given to Henry VI., "Most high and mighty prince" to Edward IV., "Highness" to Henry VII., which last expression and sometimes "Grace" was used to Henry VIII. About the end of this reign all titles were absorbed by that of "Majesty," with which Francis I. addressed the king at their interview in 1520. James I. coupled this to the title "Sacred," or "Most excellent."—London Answers.

How Maps Are Made.

Large map making firms have geographical libraries, collected from every source and in every language. The modest sketch map of the missionary in some wild region is as highly valued as the most complete survey map. In making a new map of any important region the compilations made by others are hardly ever touched. Representatives are sent out, and every detail is taken from its original source. These representatives are paid enormous salaries. They are never rushed, but are allowed to take as long over their work as they think it necessitates.

Needles In England.

Needles were first made in London by a negro from Spain in the reign of Queen Mary. He died, however, without imparting the secret of his art, and it was lost until 1565, when it was recovered in the reign of Elizabeth, and Elias Growse, a German, taught the art to the English. The manufacture of needles was then again lost to England for nearly a century, but about 1650 it was recovered by Christopher Greening, who settled at Long Crendon, in Buckinghamshire.—London Chronicle.

His Memory.

They had not met for years. "Do you remember," he asked, "the little sapling we planted together as boy and girl?"

Her eyes softened at the recollection. "Yes," she answered, "I remember it well."

"That sapling," he continued dreamily, "must be a strong and sturdy oak now."

The softness all died out of her eyes, and conversation ceased.

The Sickly Octogenarians.

They were neither of them brilliant scholars, but they liked to move with the times as regards their knowledge of current events, so the daily newspaper was regularly delivered at their humble domicile, and it was Jennie's duty to read out during breakfast time all the most interesting items of the day. One morning, after wading through the latest intelligence page from the front, she turned to another page of the paper and said:

"Herbie, it says here that another octogenarian's dead."

"What's an octogenarian?"

"Well, I don't quite know what they are, but they must be very sick creatures. You never hear of them but they're dying."—Scottish American

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus With One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Clebourne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." The Cakes of Our Childhood.

It must be a common experience with us all to look back with something of wonder, even of humiliation, to the things in literature or art we once thought exquisite and of highest worth. The oratory we once sat under, the music we once sang or played, the engraving we used to buy and hang on our walls when we were eighteen and infallible—how poor and cheap they often seem after a quarter of a century or so, during which we have read more, thought more, used our eyes more and drunk deeper of the "still sad music of humanity!"

GIVEN UP TO DIE.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." —Sold by E. B. Gibson.

He Had His Answer.

"I wish I dared to ask you something, Miss Helen," said Percy, with trembling voice.

"Why don't you dare to ask it?" the maiden said demurely.

"Because I can see 'No' in your eyes."

"In both of them?"

"Y-yes."

"Well, don't you—don't you know two negatives are equivalent to an—how dare you, sir! Take your arm from around my waist instantly!" But he didn't.

News and Comment

THE Native Sons' parade in Sacramento on Admission Day was ruined by the actions of the musicians in refusing to parade after the column had started owing to the fact that the Stockton Boys' Band, which was non-union, was in line. The Stockton Parlor brot the band to Sacramento and entered the parade with them. When the objection was made the Parlor refused to march if the band was removed so the Grand Marshal ordered the march resumed. Then all the 26 union bands fell out, leaving the Boys' Band the only one in the parade. The members of the Boys' Band were all under 16 years of age.

THE yellow fever situation has improved materially in the past week. The fever is still confined to the territory in and around New Orleans, one or two towns on the coast in Mississippi being affected. The number of new cases has fallen off considerably, and the number of deaths has been reduced almost to a minimum. A vigorous warfare is still being waged against the mosquito, and apparently with success. It is thot that the fever will be entirely stamped out by October 1, if not before.

JUDGE A. B. PARKER, the Democratic candidate for President last year, has been selected as chief counsel for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company at a salary of $100,000 per year, a position worth twice as much as the presidency. We have not heard of Roosevelt's expressing any regrets, however, or that he desired to "swap" places with Alton.

IN the big fistic bout last Saturday Battling Nelson knocked Jimmie Britt out in the 18th round. The fight was said to be the best one, from a fighting standpoint, ever held on the coast. The receipts were a little over $49,000 of which Nelson gets $19,200 and Britt $12,750, and Manager Cofforth the balance.

UKIAH TO HAVE BIG STREET FAIR

Mr. Hermann, of the Southern Carnival Show Co., was in town this week and made satisfactory arrangements with the business men and will bring his street fair here for the first week in October. His aggregation is composed of 250 people, and State street from the Eagle block to Eldred's stable will be turned into a Midway, a Pike or a Trail. He guarantees a good show, so the trustees have given him a permit to use the street for the show

Roy Lynch is home after spending several months in Point Arena, where he was engaged in wiring the houses, preparatory to the installation of the electric light system.

Last Friday evening the Assembly hall at the State hospital was dedicated by a dance and other amusements. The asylum band discoursed music and Dr. Hogshead, of San Francisco, read the Declaration of Independence and sang some solos.

Mrs. A. Langren and Mrs. Tillie Warden left this morning for San Francisco to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lizzie Hagan, who died in a hospital there Wednesday. Mrs. Hagan was the daughter of Mrs. A. Langren and a sister of Mrs. Tillie Warden.

B. N. Colberg, of Fort Bragg, passed thru town Wednesday en route to Sweden on a visit to his father and mother, whom he has not seen for twenty years. He intends to surprise the old folks, as they know nothing of his coming. He may remain in Sweden all winter. His brothers will attend to his business in Fort Bragg during his absence.

H. McKenzie, who was appointed by the board of supervisors, to inspect the Eel river bridge and report on its condition, has finished his work and returned to Low Gap yesterday where he will continue the work as superintendent. He has succeeded in securing Jim Williams of Mendocino to act as head sawyer. A new and larger blower has been procured so the work will now go on without interruption.

The Overmeyer family have arranged for a big reunion at the fair grounds, Fremont, Ohio, on September 22nd. A regular program of exercises has been arranged and a grand reunion is anticipated. All the Overmeyer descendants of John G. Overmeyer, who died Sept. 22, 1805, have been invited to be present. It is estimated that fully 1500 will be present, the Overmeyers of this city have been invited to be present.

YOUNG LADY IS GIVEN A SURPRISE

On Wednesday evening, Sept. 6th, a gay party of friends gathered at the home of W. J. Hildreth, in this city, to surprise Miss Genevieve Skinner, of St. Louis, Mo., it being the anniversary date of her birth. Games, music and recitations whiled the happy hours away, all too soon. The chief feature of oratory was the speech delivered by Pete Cunningham, in his own inimitable style upon the presentation to Miss Genevieve of a gift—a Pomo Indian basket—as a California souvenir to her, from her friends. She was also the recipient of several other pretty and appropriate gifts. Miss Skinner leaves in a few days for her home in St. Louis so the occasion was also one of farewell.

Drowned in Blue Lakes

A. H. Forcier was drowned in Blue Lakes Wednesday morning of last week. It is said he had been drinking and had gone in swimming with his clothes on. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

Died at County Farm

A Russian Finn who was brot over from Fort Bragg last week, examined on a charge of insanity and discharged, died at the county farm Wednesday. He refused all food from the time he entered the hospital.

Mrs. Alice Thomson and family desire to extend their sincere gratitude to the many friends whose ministering sympathies were so thotfully tendered during their late bereavement caused by the death of their loving husband and father, Dr. Herbert Thomson.

There will be a union service in the interest of Sunday-school work next Sunday evening, September 17th, in the Presbyterian church, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. C. R. Fisher, general secretary of the California Sunday School Association, will be in Ukiah next Sunday on his way to the county convention at Fort Bragg. His presence here is the reason for holding this service. He will deliver the address of the evening.

George Elledge and J. B. Turner, two of Warden Yell's crack guards, came over from Folsom Sunday to spend a few days vacation in old Ukiah. They report everything in excellent condition at Folsom and think Mr. Yell an ideal warden. While here, Turner "pludareed" a Muscovy duck and took it back with him Tuesday as a trophy of the chase. George Elledge will remain here a few days longer, as it is his first vacation for a year.

GOOD RACING IS NOW ASSURED.

From present indications the coming race meeting will be the best ever had in this section of the country. The race course is being sprinkled and leveled every day and is in very fine condition There are 15 horses now being trained here. Secretary Albertson informs us there will be three carloads of runners shipped from Oakland next week. Ten or fifteen runners will leave Eureka next Sunday and be here to take part in the program. Four stalls have just been engaged by H. B. Hayden, from Covelo, and Mr. David Johnson, of Napa, will bring four or five runners. As to the trotters there will be O. E. Williams' Wilmar, Dr. Clark's Robzola of Santa Rosa, and R. W. Peterson's R. W. P., of Santa Rosa, to contest in a three in-five event on the last day. Either of these horses can step a one-half mile in 1:03, and it is an assured fact that the track record for one-half mile, of 1:05¾, and made by Grace Bro.'s Ole last year will be broken. Thos. Charlton has entered Dumont S into a match race of mile heats with Gertie H. of Santa Rosa, and Grace McKinney, of Petaluma. This will be a particular feature for the Sonoma county excursion, as the horses are evenly matched and any one of them can trot in 2:15 or better. Mr. Albertson says the stalls are about all spoken for.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY HAS A SPEEDY COLT

District Attorney Duncan of Mendocino county was a visitor here on Satarday and went out to the track to see his speedy three year-old colt by Lynwood W. work. Mr. Duncan was greatly pleased with the colt's performance. The colt has only been worked for three months by John Quinn, the well known local trainer and is just getting over the "pink eye." The colt showed sensational speed by working a fast mile. He stepped the last half in 1:01¾, and the last quarter in .31½ seconds, a 2:06 gait.—Santa Rosa Democrat.
